Committee: United Nations Entity for Gender Equality and
The Empowerment of Women (UNWOMEN)
Topic: Empowerment of women
Delegate: Nehir Gürsaç

We as the delegation of United States of America are aware of the ongoing discrimination and inequality of women all around the world. Girls and women in all areas still fight for their lives and rights despite the obstacles they face just because of their gender. Discrimination against women in work areas and households is a wide spread threat for females to continue their lives in peace. Our policy according to every matter of human rights violations towards women is to provide them the guarded and safe life with every help possible to sustain every action for the issue to last.

To address the issue worldwide we have multiple organizations and donation services to benefit women in rural areas, who don't have the access to education and healthcare. Advancing women's economic security is both a moral and a strategic imperative of U.S. foreign policy. Women's meaningful economic participation is integral to achieving greater security and stability around the world. When women are economically secure, they invest in their families and communities, advocating economic growth and creating more stable societies. Advancing women's economic security is critical for ensuring that all countries can meet their full economic potential and that women are able to fully, meaningfully, and equally contribute to, and benefit from, global prosperity. The Gender Equity and Equality Action Fund (GEEA) advances economic security for women and girls by increasing their access to resources, services, and leadership opportunities and by addressing the barriers that limit their ability to participate fully in the economy. There are over 218 million women and girls around the world, majority in poor and vulnerable communities who currently have no reliable way of preventing an unintended pregnancy that could make them poorer, push their dreams beyond their reach or threaten their health and life. MSI United States exists to enable more women and girls to take control of their futures by equipping family planning services across 37 countries. In order to provide women and girls the finance, we have our USAID funds for gender equality and women's empowerment works. USAID focuses on programming worldwide and work to shape and regulate policies that empower women and girls. USAID has a global network of more than 180 gender advisors and points of contacts and ingrained in Missions and Operating Units throughout the agency who work together with other colleagues to integrate gender and advance gender equality objectives in USAID's work.

We are proud of the work and establishments that has been done. We are looking forward for the progress and new actions that are going to be taken towards the issue with UNWOMEN. United States of America perceives our world's women's struggles as a conscientious and ethical responsibility.
