

Comittee: United Nations Children's Fund

Country: Kyrgyz Republic

Delegate: Rifat İlke İlter

Kyrgyz Republic is the 34th most populous country in Asia with a 6.7 million people. Kyrgyzstan is a democratic republic with a presidential form of government. The political landscape has experienced periodic changes and transitions since gaining independence in 1991. The Kyrgyz Republic extends its sincere appreciation to the committee for addressing the critical issue of child labor. As a nation committed to the principles of the United Nations, we recognize the urgency and importance of eradicating child labor globally. Child labor refers to work that deprives children of their childhood, interferes with their ability to attend regular schools, and is mentally, physically, socially, or morally harmful. It is a violation of children's rights and has long-term negative consequences on their well-being and development.

The Kyrgyz Republic firmly believes that every child deserves the right to a safe, healthy, and nurturing environment, free from the shackles of exploitative labor practices. We are committed to upholding international standards and have taken significant steps to combat child labor within our borders. The ratification of international conventions such as the ILO Convention No. 182 and the implementation of legislative measures demonstrate our dedication to eradicating child labor. The Kyrgyz Republic has implemented a multifaceted approach to combat child labor, focusing on education, legislation, poverty alleviation and awareness campaigns.

The Kyrgyz Republic acknowledges that challenges persist, including the need for improved enforcement mechanisms, increased public awareness, and the development of sustainable economic alternatives. We propose a comprehensive approach that involves not only legislative measures but also social and economic strategies to address the root causes of child labor. In conclusion, the Kyrgyz Republic remains committed to the principles of the United Nations and the global fight against child labor. We look forward to fruitful discussions and collaborative solutions that will contribute to the eradication of child labor, ensuring that every child has the opportunity to grow and develop in a safe and nurturing environment.
