

UN WOMAN, DELEGATION OF SOUTH AFRICA, POSITION PAPER

Committee: UN WOMAN

Agenda Item: Empowerment of Woman

Country: South Africa

South Africa, Republic of South Africa has a population over 61 thousand people. It's current president is Cyril Ramaphosa. It has three capital cities: Pretoria, Bloemfontein, Cape Town. It is a multinational country with around 11 languages being spoken and several ethnic groups living there.

Government of South Africa policy aims to ensure the safeness of its pregnant citizens, reduce the amount of adolescent fertility, equalize the amount of domestic work men and women do, reduce the amount of reported and unreported abuse cases.

Woman's empowerment has been very important for South Africa. South Africa has been trying it's best for women empowerment despite the economical and non-gender related issues but this is not enough. We have ideas on women's empowerment. Education about abuse and how to detect it and report it should be encouraged all over the nation, healthcare for women that are pregnant and financial aid to support the newborn and its mother is necessary, education about adolescent fertility for people of all age is necessary in order to ensure safety for our youth.
