Topic: The Portuguese Colonial War in Africa

The Republic of Congo closely monitors the wars for independence taking place in Portuguese colonies as part of the struggle for independence and freedom in Africa. These wars hold critical significance in terms of regional instability and the right of African peoples to self-determination. Congo aims to support this process through peaceful means and respects Africa's ability to determine its own future.

The Republic of Congo supports the demands for independence in Portuguese colonies and defends the rights of the people. Oppression in these colonies obstructs the free expression of the people's will and leads to serious violations of human rights. In this context, Congo advocates for the assurance of the right to self-determination for the people in Portuguese colonies. Congo emphasizes the importance of regional stability and peace. Resolving the wars for independence in Portuguese colonies through peaceful means is crucial for regional stability. Diplomatic dialogue and international cooperation can assist in achieving peaceful resolutions. The Republic of Congo believes that the international community should support the wars for independence in Portuguese colonies. Increased international aid and solidarity are necessary to meet humanitarian needs such as education, healthcare, and other essential requirements.

The Republic of Congo supports the wars for independence in Portuguese colonies, emphasizes the importance of peaceful solutions and regional stability, and highlights the vital role of international support and respect for human rights for the future of Africa and regional stability.
