Combating Human Trafficking for Organ Removal

Germany acknowledges the seriousness of the agenda item “Combating Human Trafficking for Organ Removal”. Since the population in the world is increasing day by day finding organ donors is more hard than it used to be in the past. Due to this problem, people who need healthy and suitable organs for themselves are starting to constitute illegal ways.

Such as human trafficking and removing their organs without the person’s permission, which is a direct attack on human rights.

Even though Germany is not a popular location for human trafficking there are also some cases about organ removal. In 2022 most trafficked persons came from West African countries. In 47% of all the cases, Germany was the place of exploitation.

Germany has created an effective law to combat human trafficking. Also, Germany is providing support to trafficked victims. Such as housing, medical assistance, psychological support, legal counseling and vocational rehabilitation. In addition, there are special programs to protect victims.

Germany emphasizes the significance of international cooperation and coordination among UNODC member states. By fostering collaboration, creating organizations, campaigns, and information sharing we can effectively combat human trafficking.

Conclusion

As a responsible member of the international community, Germany is aware of the seriousness. Germany will try to do its best to protect human rights, protecting human health, providing them a safer world and the well-being of people universally.
