In Post-Conflict Regions

The United States declared its independence in 1776. It's placed in North America. There is Atlantic Ocean in east and Pasifik ocean in west. Also there is Canada in north and Mexican in south. The capital city is Washington D.C.. USA population approximately is 348 million. The most crowded city in America is New York and New York's population approximately is 8 million. USA has the biggest economy and America is one of the most powerful countries in the military field. The Government of America has 50 states. Forty-eight of these states are contiguous, and the other two are Alaska and the Hawaiian Islands. America is hosting the best universities in the world. Moreover, it offers a wide range of scholarships and financial aid options. United States of America, uses special equipments for rare disease.

Colonialism refers to a state to create political, economic, and cultural control over another control. Colonialism began in the 15th century with the discovery of the American continent, started by Spain and Portugal. America did not create a colonial empire about this topic but played an important and moot role in the history of colonialism. America's role in this topic, began with its expansionism on its own continent. By the end of the 19th century, it began as a global power. After few centuries, America transformed into a colonial state, and primary motivation behind its colonial policy was economic gain. The regions it controlled were used as commodity for America. Some of the conquered regions were controlled by military governors, but this later changed to authoritarian regimes and dictatorships. America started to do an American-style education system to spread its own culture and educational style in regions and made English the official language. America followed two paths in terms of reconstruction. First, political reconstruction; changes were made to the Constitution, thereby abolishing slavery. As a second path was, economic reconstruction activities; people were provided with economic support in terms of food, shelter, medical intervention, and education.

America wasn't follow just one way. Firstly America perform a policy called "Manifest Destiny". This policy mostly about America's religion. In this policy USA has all America contient because its a given task from the God. Secondly America perform a policy called "Monroe Doctirine". This policy mostly about nationalism. In this policy USA says "The American continent belongs to the Americans". USA can watch a clear policy and can may express regret at a diplomatic level to make a normal and good relation ship and to develop our policy. Moreover America can pay more money for develop regions education and medical intervention. Our expectation from other countries is it could be to encourage the areas under control to speak out and thereby reduce the perception of colonialism.
