Agenda: Strengthening The Role of Women

China is a country in East Asia with a population of 1.4 billion people, making it the second most populous country. If we take a look at education, we can find that the education is not as bad as the health problems, because there are many diseases such as plague, smallpox, cholera and typhus. But China has been trying its best to improve health problems since 1949.

All-China Women's Federation (ACWF), the official, state-sponsored organization representing women's interests in the People's Republic of China (PRC). Founded on April 3, 1949, the basic mission of the All-China Women's Federation's (ACWF) is to represent and safeguard the rights and interests of women and promote gender equality. A feminist study of gender in society needs concepts to differentiate and analyze social inequalities between girls and boys and between women and men that do not reduce differences to the notion of biology as destiny. The concept of sexism explains that prejudice and discrimination based on sex or gender, not biological inferiority, are the social barriers to women and girls' success in various arenas. To overcome patriarchy in society is, then, to dismantle sexism in society. The study of sexism has suggested that the solution to gender inequity is in changing sexist culture and institutions.

The root causes of gender inequality are gender bias and social norms that restrict women's rights and opportunities, which, together with preference /comparative advantage between men and women, are the root drivers of gender gaps and this problem could have been overcome if our people had understood this problem in time. We can start with the simplest solutions, such as ending sexual assault, child marriage and violence, creating platforms for women to be in power and achieve economic success, and enabling unlimited education and health.

As China, we have been trying our best to solve this inequality since 1949 with Maoist revolution and I believe in the near future we will have a good solution so it won't just be announced in China, but it will be a wide world solution.
