

Country: Norway

Committee: GA4 SPECPOL (Special Politics and Decolonization) Committee

Agenda Item: Effects of Foreign Companies on the Economies and Politics of Central American Nations

Oslo is the capital of the Norway. Norway is located in the north of Europe. It is located on the Scandinavian peninsula. Norway's border neighbors are Russia in the north, Finland and Sweden in the west. In the west of the country there is the Norwegian Sea.

Norway is one of the countries with the highest per person income in Europe.

Although there have been positive changes in the Central American region since the 1980s, serious challenges still remain. Poverty and inequality are still at high levels.

Norwegian companies can influence the economy and politics of Central America through investment, trade and cooperation. As a result of these activities, local economic growth in this region can both be increased and have political consequences. Norwegian companies can contribute in these ways.

Business partnerships: Norwegian companies can contribute to Central America's economy by offering partnerships in business opportunities.

Climate change: Norway can play a role in mitigating climate change and developing alternative energy sources in Central America

Technology: Contributions can be made to the technological developments of Central America through agreements made by technology companies in Norway.

Thanks to these effects, it can contribute to the development of the economy and a higher standard of life in Central America.
Thank you.
