

Country: China

Agenda: Reconstruction and Development in Post-Conflict Regions (SPECPOL)

China is a country located in Asia, its area being 3,705,410 square miles. China is the second most powerful country in the military power rankings. China is the second most populated country in the world. China is known for being a powerhouse of production and its massive population. China is famous for its cuisine and also its traditions. It has a very rich history and is a very popular country. It is known for its great military power too. Overall, China is known by many countries and it is a great world power.

The Chinese civil war was incredibly devastating for some civilians, causing unrest and no peace for years. There were two sides in the war, the CCP and the KMP. This civil war had far-reaching consequences for China's political, social and economic landscape. The civil war was eventually won by the CCP in 1949. Mao declared the founding of the People's Republic of China on 1 October 1949. Chiang Kai-shek, meanwhile, fled to the island of Taiwan, where he continued to rule.

One way we can help post-war areas to reconstruct and develop is by supplying food and clean drinking water to these areas, building temporary homes that people can live in and helping people economically. China is ready to take part in international alliances to provide this help.

Sources:

<https://www.nationalarchives.gov.uk/>