

Position Paper

Committee Name: UNWOMEN

Topic: Addressing Femicides Through Legislative Action and International Cooperation

Country: Switzerland

---

Switzerland points that femicide as a serious violation of human rights that causes directly consequence of gender inequality. Although the fact that there has been improvement at the national level, We emphasize the urgent need for stronger international and legislative action.

In its homeland, Switzerland is in support of changes that would make femicide a separate crime, enhancing efforts at protection and punishment. For the purpose of to ensure that our country's law meets with global human rights standards, We also respect the Istanbul Convention.

International cooperation is important, based on Switzerland. To effectively fight with femicide, we support international legislative applications, collaborative investigations, and international exchange of information. With the aim to stop violence at its source, we also emphasize the significance of social change and education.

We call on all countries to take a stand to:

- Legally address femicide.
- Making national laws stronger.
- Improving global cooperation.
- Using education for gender equality.

Switzerland is willing to work together with the international community to make sure that no woman is ever discriminated for her gender.

Thank you.
