

Protecting Children from Bullying and Violence

Name: Ahmet Selman Akkaş

Committee: United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund

Delegate: Argentina

Bullying can happen in school, playground or social media . 30% of children in the world are victims of bullying. This number may seem low, but it is a lot. This issue is crucial for the future and safe growth of our children.

UNESCO has undertaken numerous projects to ensure every child receives a safe education. For example, it has taught tolerance instead of bullying in schools in West Africa. UNICEF has also stated that bullying is prevalent not only in schools but also on social media like instagram, tiktok, youtube . 30% of children are bullied worldwide. This statistic may seem low, but it's a very high figure.

Bullying can cause children to avoid going to school. For example, the bully may cause an individual to dislike school, which can lead to a lack of understanding even if they attend school. Bullying can also cause a child to suffer from depression or other psychological disorders. CHILD PROTECTION LAW 26.061: this law was made to protect children. It was passed in 2005. Argentina believes it can address this issue through education. They plan to reduce bullying in the classroom by providing education or harsh punishments

Argentina is requesting that the United Nations fully implement the law and prosecute those who engage in violence and bullying against children, helping them change their behavior. Argentina is requesting educational programs from other countries, such as Scandinavia, that have been successful in combating bullying. For example, events could be organized to reduce bullying, or days like the previous Lucha Contra el Bullying Day could be increased. As these days increase, people will be more likely to avoid bullying and we can stop this issue day by day.
