

Country: Canada

Committee: World Food Programme (WFP)

Agenda Item: Ensuring Food Security for Children in Emergencies

Paragraph 1 – Country Background

Canada is located in North America and it is a large and developed country. The population of Canada comes from many different cultures. Their healthcare and education systems are very strong. Canada has a lot of farmlands and it can grow many kinds of food. Canada believes that helping people in need, especially children is very important. For this reason, it works to make sure children can get food during emergencies.

Paragraph 2 – Historical Background & International Actions

Children cannot get enough food during emergencies like disasters, wars and economic problems. This can be very dangerous for their health. The World Food Programme and United Nations have been working for a long time to bring food to children and make nutrition programmes. Canada supports these kinds of activities and believes it is important to help children stay healthy.

Paragraph 3 – National Policy & Proposed Solutions

Canada wants to continue working with the World Food Programme to give food to children during emergencies. Canada supports programmes like school meal programmes and health programmes for families. Canada also suggests preparing food early and working with local groups to deliver help faster. Canada believes that all countries should work together so that no child suffers from hunger during an emergency.
