

Country: INDONESIA

Committee: FAO (Food and Agriculture Organization)

Agenda Item: Global Food Security and Sustainable Agriculture

Paragraph 1 – Country Background

Indonesia is a country in south-east Asia. It has a lot of islands. Its climate is tropical. It produces a lot of palm oil and other similar products from its lush tropical nature. It's not a very rich country so it doesn't have a lot of money for research. Its people are very diverse and speak a lot of languages. It also a Muslim majority country like Türkiye

Paragraph 2 – Historical Background & International Actions

Indonesia like many countries around the world belongs to international organizations, like FAO - this means that it has committed to follow established procedures and practices. This is a very good thing. International cooperation is important as it could help the country follow some good standards and open its market internationally- this will help a lot it's economy and people.

Paragraph 3 – National Policy & Proposed Solutions

For countries like Indonesia a big challenges is helping all its people from all its territories and islands, meaning giving equal opportunities for growth and prosperity to everyone across the different sectors of the economy. Also given climate change, the islands are exposed to climate risks such as as flooding or drought - these should be managed properly to avoid loses (human for example) and damages (on buildings and infrastructure).
