

Country : Egypt

Comittee : WHO

Agenda Item : Uncontrolled Use Pf Technology

Egypt, or officially the Arab Republic of Egypt is a country located at the northeastern corner of Africa. It is the country with the biggest population in North Africa. Most of its population is settled along in the Nile River. Its official language is Arabic. Its population is 107 million.

Although Egypt doesn't have a lot of technology like the other countries Egypt has some problems too. We often think that young children ages between 5 and 15 are addicted to technology, but in Egypt the situation is different. In this country university students are more addicted to technology than younger children. We think this is a big problem for the next generation and the education system.

To solve this problem we can organise artistic and sports activities. For the university aged students, school balls can be organized. Sports competitions can be held. We can give educational seminars on uncontrolled use of technology with professionals. For young children self-discovery based activities can be done instead of doing technology based activities.
