Lithuania realizes the significance of Women's status in our planet. Moreover, It is without a doubt that women's status around the world ought to be tackled, and find a conclusive solution to the predicament. It is of utmost importance to develop a society where men and women are truly equal. We are especially willing to cooperate since women's status is at stake. Lithuania has done many reforms in the past as well as recent times. We were among the few countries that gave women the right to elect and be elected. Both men and women were addressed and treated without any margin of inequality in the Provisional Constitution of 1918.

Lithuania anticipates further improvements for women and girls in general. Currently, 27.7% of the parliamentary seats are held by women. Furthermore, cabinet members also consist of women. Lithuania elected her first female president in 2009, which is a clear sign of development regarding women's rights. Incidentally, 91.7% of legal frameworks that promote, enforce and monitor gender equality under the SDG (Sustainable Development Goals) indicator, with a focus on violence and abuse against women have been legislated. Lithuania set out on her new mission to educate women against the law and their rights.

Lithuania has signed numerous conventions and treaties in order to dismantle women's suffrage firstly in Lithuania, and then in the world. Consequently, Lithuania has been cooperating with her both regional allies and prominent global companions. Although new law legislations have been conceived and put into effect by us, we urge the countries to follow our lead. We vehemently believe that the modus operandi to obliterate the hardships faced by women -gender wage gap, stereotypes and domestic abuse- is through cooperation and international correspondence.

We look forward to exponentially increasing our cooperation with other fellow UN members. We also speculate to thrive in terms of women's rights, equality and over all well-being; thus, we expect more women in politics, administration, STEM and other predominantly male areas. We will not be daunted and deviate from our scheme to eliminate women's great troubles. To be concise, we will remain alert for any future and current hostilities that may jeopardize the prosperity of women, and Lithuania will move on with her journey resolutely with the aim of securing absolute equality.
